To whom it may concern

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Sam Hayward and the rest of the team at Vision Media Systems for organising our audio visual for a large travel expo that our Adventure Travel outlet held on the 18th March 2009 at the Wellesley Hotel in Wellington.

Sam came up with several options for our audio visual set-up. After checking if there was any room for negotiation on the costings provided he came back with some further suggestions on how we could save money, and was kind enough to throw in the microphones and a couple of speaker plinths at no extra no cost! Now, that's going the extra mile for your customer! Sam is always friendly, consistently polite, professional, and willing to go that extra mile!

The two guys from Vision Media Systems who set-up our presentation rooms were also extremely helpful, and even though they had the delightful job of lugging heavy equipment between several floors of the hotel they did not complain about this and just got on with the job at hand. In no time at all they had the two presentation rooms set-up and all the AV equipment working and looking great!

Our travel presentations are a crucial part of our travel expos and information evenings as they really help us 'sell a destination' and excite people to want to travel there. Using an AV company that could offer us value for money and access to the latest audio visual equipment was extremely important. And Vision Media Systems were certainly the right choice for us! The top quality visual and sound set-up provided by Vision Media Systems helped us to deliver a really professional travel expo and immensely lifted the visual and sound impact and standard of the presentations.

We will certainly be using Vision Media Systems for other events and would have no hesitation in highly recommending them as the audio visual provider for your events.

Kind regards
